Hi There!

We are an easy-going, Christian family who values quality time spent together and have a love for the outdoors. We always wanted children, but after years of infertility, knew adoption was a special way for children to enter into our family. Our son, Alex, was adopted from birth in 2013. We treasure the miracle and blessing he is! We look forward to sharing the stability of our marriage and home life, financial security, educational opportunities, protection and love with another child. The open adoption we have with Alex's birth mother is a relationship we gladly welcome again.
About Us

We married 6 months from first meeting each other and 10 years later, we still laugh and joke every day. We love being parents! Tim works as an electrician and is an all-around talented guy to have around. Stacy has a culinary degree, which always comes in handy, but truly enjoys being a stay-at-home mom, while working part-time managing storage units.

We both grew up on family farms. The funny thing about leaving the farm is realizing the gift of growing up caring for animals, planting and weeding crops, praying for rain, learning to work hard and now being able to visit our parent's properties as a family and to share and do that together! Life is good.

My Husband, Tim...
I have learned from Tim the value of treating people how you want to be treated. If you go anywhere with him, he sincerely asks people how they are doing or how the day is going for them. Tim is patient, has a great attitude and outlook on life, and has a love for history and taking time away, as a family, to travel the sites of our great country each year. Tim is helping transform our landscape and his family farm with fruit and nut orchards and we love working alongside him on this adventure.

When Tim gets home from work each evening, not a moment is lost before he starts playing with Alex and he is excited to come home to another child to join in on the fun. He is a committed husband and father.
My Wife, Stacy...
Stacy keeps our household together and she is excited to welcome another child or sibling set into our family. The same love and happiness she shares with all of us as a wife and mother, she wants to share with your child. She makes yummy meals and lets Alex help her in the garden and cook with her. He's the best stirrer. She always has time to play games and do movie nights as a family, making pizza and buttery popcorn.

Sunday mornings, before Church, she makes a special breakfast for us, taking requests the day before. Stacy has a love for making things homemade like peppermint/lavender soap, whipped body butter, chapstick and old fashioned canning of tomato sauce, salsa and fruit preserves.
Yearly birthday trip to celebrate with Alex’s Birthmother!

Stacy's mom placed a newborn girl up for adoption after an unplanned pregnancy whom we now have a close relationship with and whose family of 5, is happily part of our family! Stacy's brother married a wonderful woman, who was adopted from South Korea, as a baby, and they have two beautiful children together. Tim's brother and his wife adopted a baby boy as first time parents in 2016. We welcome and celebrate adoption on both sides of our family.

Our days are filled with food, fun, reading, games, music, and dancing, and we look forward to sharing this with another child. Alex sweetly prays for siblings and being able to experience that special bond. We value both of our parents and see them weekly, as they live within 45 minutes of us. We have many meals and holidays together, making lasting memories! We regularly visit and host our siblings and their terrific children.
Our Home in Wisconsin

We enjoy the benefits of having neighbors, all in a wooded, country setting with a big yard to play in. The church we attend, as well as the library, local parks, pool, and great schools are only a few miles away. Our newly renovated home has three bedrooms, a furnished nursery, and a big kitchen with lots of space for family time.
Letters from...

My husband and I met Tim and Stacy almost 6 years ago. From the very beginning of our friendship, they were there for us with listening ears and prayers. They are great with our children, and always ready to give a helping hand. My kids love spending time at their house, go biking together, or just playing outside. Stacy and I share many discussions on how to come alongside our children to be the best they can be. It is so encouraging to have friends who care for their children as much as you do for yours. Tim and Stacy have a home and a family that is full of love and encouragement. They are already amazing adoptive parents to Alex, and they will continue to be for any other child that comes into their care. They provide an environment where children will not only succeed but will thrive. They have a deep love for God and an amazing commitment to each other.
Kristina & Drew (close friends)

I have known Stacy and Tim for over 12 years. We first met through church and quickly became good friends. I have had many opportunities to watch Stacy interact with her son since his adoption. I have been impressed with her ability to grasp those teachable moments and not let them slip by. She is able to calmly redirect him and I am amazed at how well he listens. Stacy lets him be an active part of her day and isn't afraid to just let him be a boy, from jumping in puddles to playing in the mud. They are both kind and compassionate.
Lisa & Randy (close friends)

Our daughter Stacy, and her husband Tim, have shown the depth of their love for Alex, by their dedicated effort to nurture his growth and minimize the effects of his various allergies. The mutual respect and support they gave the birth mother, was significant to me. I had placed an infant daughter in a closed adoption. I waited over 30 years for the adoption agency to contact me, at the request of the daughter I gave up, to begin the emotional process of reuniting. Stacy and Tim's joy of raising their son, and their willingness to continually share milestones of his life, brings emotional healing for the birth mother. The birth mother knows her child is being raised in a loving and caring home where she is known.
Ann & Gene (Stacy's parents)
Stacy is my older sister and we have been close our whole lives. I have always looked up to her, especially her strong determination in life. I have known my brother-in-law Tim for over 10 years now, and he has been a great addition to the family. His kind personality and hard working attitude made him fit right in. Their son Alex is also adopted, but you would never know because of how loving and affectionate Stacy and Tim are for him. He is a great nephew with a hilarious personality. Alex and my daughter Quinn love to play together whenever they see each other. I think Stacy and Tim would make amazing adoptive parents again. They both have a strong religious faith and great family values. Every week they have both of their parents over for the day to create new memories and watch Alex grow. They have gone above and beyond in taking care of Alex and his allergies. Whenever family or friends need help, they’re always there to support them in any way possible.

Preston & Kelly (Stacy's brother)

Tim is our son and we have been so proud of the man that he has become. We have been gifted a wonderful daughter-in-law when Stacy became a member of our family. We watched as they grew as a couple and then to be blessed with our grandson, Alexander. The love that they show to Alex and the time that they spend with him makes us very proud of both of them. They have given him so many special moments teaching him values, manners, and all of the things that a child needs as they grow. Alex is a very happy child and it is due to the love that they have bestowed on him. If we are fortunate to have another child become a member of our family through adoption, that child will be loved and valued by two very special parents.

Marita & Bill (Tim's parents)

I have been working with Tim at the same employer for over 12 years. Tim and Stacy use a thoughtful, patient, and purposeful parenting strategy that all parents should emulate. They are very responsive to their child's short-term and long-term needs. Tim and Stacy value hard work and integrity.
